Nature, Art and Enterprise HAVE COMBINED IN MAKING Wildwood-by-the-Sea A VERITABLE SEASIDE PARADISE.

A VERITABLE SEASIDE PARADISE.

Situated on one of the cleanest and finest beaches of the South Jersey Coast, the comparatively new and enterprising City of WILDWOOD combines all the best features of these most famous seaside resorts, with many attractions that are not possessed by any of them. The streets and avenues of WILDWOOD-BY-THE-SEA are broad and well paved; it has the most complete sewerage system; metropolitan sas and electric light plants, and the best water supply of any resort in South Jersey. Its hotels are almost all new and notably modern in equipment and management. The railroad facilities are of the finest, and the bathing, boating and fishing cannot be excelled. WARREN WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS; 4 KINDS Friday-Other Notes. Special Correspondence of The Star.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 24, 1905. On next Friday the flag of Rear Admiral Willard Brownson will be lowered at the Naval Academy and he will be no longer connected with the institution, to which he has given so much careful attention during his term. The following day he will assume his command of the cruiser squadron, taking as his flagship the West Virginia. The squadron is composed of the West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Colorado, The ships of the squadron are among the newest and best of the ships of the navy and will outrank many of the first-class battleships of our navy. Much regret is expressed over the detaching of Superintendent Brownson from the academy, he being one of the most popular superintendents stationed at the Naval Academy for many years. He has always shown a decided effort to retain the high standard of the academy, and in spite of the fact that he was a strict disciplinarian was well liked by all of the midshipmen. When the anti-hazing act was passed, prohibiting hazing under any circumstance under penalty of expulsion, it became the painful duty of Superintendent Brownson to enforce it and give it its first interpretation. give it its first interpretation. Three mid-shipmen were found guilty of hazing, and, with the law so plain that there was absolutely no opportunity for quibbling, Superintendent Brownson ordered their dismissal. In spite of the fact that the superintendent had plainly followed out, as an executive, a law not of his making, the families of the young men took the matter up before the department. Superintendent Brownson re-fused to recede from the position he had taken, and would not make a move looking to the reinstatement of the three young men. Congress was appealed to, and efforts were made to secure the reinstatement of the young men. Knowing the stand that he had taken in the matter, which was not actuated by malice or a desire to harm the young men, but to uphold that discipline which he had inaugurated, Congress did not care to face the opposition which would be encountered when once within the gates of the academy, and gave to the young men the right to take the examination with their class. That examination will take place next fall, long after the superintendent has been able to show what can be done in the matter of discipline when a strong effort is made in that direction. made in that direction.

Although not officially announced, fifteen of the large class of candidates for midshipmen have been passed in their mental examinations by the academic board. The papers of the remainder of the class are being examined and it is expected that they will be completed in sufficient time to permit of all those who are successful to take their physical examinations next week.
